

This matter is not friendly to consumers.

For one, I don't understand why the rush to transition of DTV. Why is the government even involved in this issue. Let the marketplace decide when to transition DTV.

Two, I'm so tired of the majority of average consumers being punished for the actions of a few. I don't think that there is going to be mass copying and re-selling/showing of television or other media. The copyright issue is overwrought with lies and deceptions.

Three, Consumers should be PAID - not PAYING for television content. Over thirty percent of our viewing time is wasted watching advertising. These advertising revenues should more than pay for decent production and delivery!
